Location of original: The National Art Library, Victoria and Albert Museum, London

Note:

Some text and illustrations are lost through tight binding. This is a problem which we regret we have found unavoidable since we are only filming at the Victoria and Albert Museum those catalogues that cannot be found in other London locations.

EXHIBITION OF CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN SCULPTURE

CARNEGIE INSTITUTE

PITTSBURGH

EXHIBITION OF CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN SCULPTURE, DEPARTMENT OF FINE ARTS, CARNEGIE INSTITUTE, JANUARY THE FOURTH THROUGH FEBRUARY THE TWENTY-EIGHTH, NINETEEN HUNDRED AND SEVENTEEN

8. 8. 1918

VICTORIA AND ALBERT MUSEUM LIBRARY

Contemporary American Sculpture

THE memorial exhibition of the works of Augustus Saint-Gaudens which was presented at Carnegie Institute in 1909, afforded to the people of Pittsburgh their first opportunity to see and study a comprehensive collection of the works of an American sculptor. Augustus Saint-Gaudens, an artist of rare ability, exerted a marked and significant influence upon the development of American sculpture, and raised a standard of perfection in his art which few American sculptors had approached, and which remains an inspiration to the student of sculpture. His "Abraham Lincoln," a profound and direct representation of character, his "Shaw Memorial," an inspiring and patriotic theme, and his many other important works which were included in that exhibition, have been far reaching in their influence.

The collection of contemporary American sculpture now presented for exhibition, affords a second opportunity to the people of Pittsburgh to see and study American sculpture, this time as represented by the works of many sculptors. In "sculpture of pure form," in "sculpture of sentiment," in "sculpture used for immediate decorative purpose," to quote a classification made by Russell Sturgis, the past ten years has seen a marked growth. Its architectural character, its adaptation to the decoration of buildings, has been greatly developed. In the form of fountains and garden figures it is adding a distinct element of beauty to the estates of the wealthy American, and its latest phase is perhaps the small bronze used for decoration of interiors. Our medals and public monuments are no longer a disgrace to the nation. We are gradually obtaining from the output of the mint coins in which surface relief and fine pattern are considered.

The present exhibition was selected from the very large collection shown at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, and later shown in part, together with a number of other works not shown at San Francisco, at the Albright Art Gallery at Buffalo, where the exhibition was presented under the auspices of the National Sculpture Society.
